PRINCIPAL’S REPORT

Thank you to everyone for the warm welcome I received when I returned on Monday - I had a wonderful break and am looking forward to the term ahead. Many thanks also to Jan Lawrence and the team for keeping everything ticking along so well while I was away.

On Tuesday, School Council met and, as is often the case, there were a vast array of topics to be discussed. Ann McAllen joined us and gave an overview of some of the work she was involved in whilst on leave last term. We have included her report later in this newsletter. There have also been a few more developments regarding the new building project however we still don’t have firm ‘starting dates’ for construction. There is a significant amount of work to be done in preparation as there are a number of classes which will need to be relocated and the council talked through a few options of how we might manage this. When the time comes, we will be very grateful for any help in this area. The refurbishment of the toilets and the hall will begin later in the term. I’ll keep you posted about any new developments in either of these projects. School Council also discussed at length, the Homework Policy draft and we hope to have the final document ready to be ratified before the end of term. Don’t forget that on this coming Monday directly after assembly we are holding a Parents’ Forum to discuss the development of our new strategic plan and to give you an opportunity to talk about education and values. Please join us for a cuppa and a chat – it’s also a great opportunity to meet other parents.

Congratulations to our senior netball team on their success yesterday in a special match at lunchtime against Aspendale Gardens. The game went into extra time, demonstrating how closely matched the two teams were. The girls from both schools played extremely well and displayed great sportsmanship. Well done to all involved.

RESTORATIVE PRACTICES
A Peaceful Way to Manage Conflict

An explanation of the processes we use to solve problems and restore relationships at Edithvale Primary School.

Supportive Environment
We place a high value on the development and maintenance of positive, healthy and respectful relationships throughout our school community. As part of growing up, our children learn about forming and building relationships. They need a supportive environment at home and at school to practise the skills that enable them to maintain friendships and develop emotional resilience.

Friendship Issues
Problems can occur when children have difficulties within friendships. Relationships can break down and we teach children to be resilient and work towards fixing problems but a breakdown of friendship should not be confused with bullying.

Definition of Bullying
Bullying is an ongoing abuse of power over another person that can be physical or verbal. This needs to be identified and dealt with accordingly but it is different from incidents that occur when children have problems with friendships and we need to be aware of the difference.

Understanding Feelings
Friendship groups can and do change and children sometimes struggle to cope. They need to be supported and helped to understand their feelings and those of their friends so friendships can be maintained. If your child has a problem please let us know so we can work through the issue together in a restorative, not a punitive way.

Restorative Practices
The philosophy behind the use of “Restorative Practice” is that any misbehaviour whether it is bullying, hurting others or breaking school rules is a violation of relationships. This violation creates obligations, liabilities and responsibilities. Restorative practices seek to heal these relationships and repair harm done.

Comparison of Tradition with Restorative Practises
Traditionally in schools when there was a problem those involved were asked what happened, who was to blame, what rule was broken and some form of punishment was applied. Restorative practice asks what happened, who is involved, what harm has been done and how do we make it right?

Developing Empathy
Instead of being punitive, restorative practice fosters awareness of how others have been affected by an incident. The child who has acted inappropriately is actively involved in the process of repairing the harm they have caused. The deed is separated from the instigator. Children learn to understand the concept of ambiguity, which means, often fault is unclear when both sides of the story are heard.

Community Conferencing
Listening to what has happened takes the form of a “community” conference (the community means all those who have been affected by the incident.) It is a forum where everyone affected has their chance to tell what happened. Those responsible tell what they did and those affected talk about the impact on their lives. Then everyone present decides what needs to be done to repair the harm and move forward. This will include saying sorry, repairing the damage done and stopping the unacceptable behaviour. Matters cannot be dealt with in this way if there is no acceptance that harm has been one and responsibility is not taken for actions that have occurred.

Value of Restorative Practices
Results are measured by how much repair is done rather than how much punishment is inflicted. The values of restorative practices are mutual respect, a belief that children can solve their problems given time, support, a chance to tell their story and an inclusive approach to problem solving.

Children will feel a sense of fairness and justice when a problem or issue is dealt with as a group. They gain an insight into the impact of unacceptable behaviour on others and that relationships can be repaired and everyone can move on together.
